

Hodgens Engineering Service

"Treating others the way we like to be treated"

Hodgens Engineering SPCC Plans are developed by a former regulatory official, small business owner and realist who understands the federal and state regulatory requirements in detail. Plans attempt to provide simple and economical ways for clients to satisfy the regulations. They are developed with attention to accuracy and ease of use.

Author's Experience

Manager Of Annual Budgets Up To Two Million Dollars

Trained By EPA In The Development Of SPCC Plans

Licensed Wastewater Treatment Plant Operator

Responsible For Managing Staff And Employees

Over 15 Years Experience In SPCC Development

Licensed Professional Engineer For 20 Years

Author Of Over 500 SPCC Plans In 12 States

Commitment To Honesty And Integrity

Health Department Inspector

Environmental Investigator

Soils Laboratory Operator

EPA Contract Employee

EPA Compliance Trainer

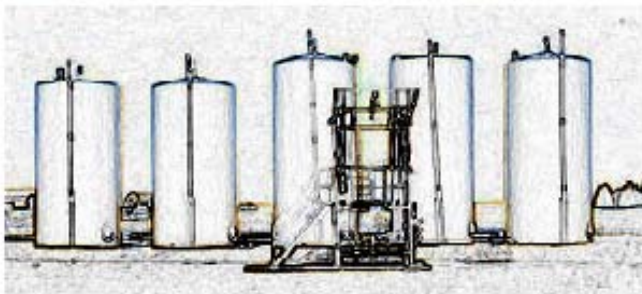

Small Business Owner

Department Manager

Municipal Engineer

College Instructor

Design Engineer

Standard Plan Provisions

Index

Tables

Figures

Drawings

Footnotes

Education

Definitions

Hard cover

Appendices

Certifications

Site photograph

Table of contents

Spill Report forms

Record keeping forms

Availability of training

Evaluation of site soils

Economical to implement

Regulation cross reference

Availability of digital copies

Improvements Specifications

Emergency contact information

Video recording of site investigations

Explanation of related State requirements

Compliant with the most current regulations

Laminated custom poster of emergency contacts

Identifies flood potential and protective measures

Detailed list of spill cleanup materials and their costs

Working under the guiding principle of

"Treating others the way we would like to be treated."